

Important information about the Heartbleed vulnerability bug

Martin Federal Credit Union was not affected by the recently-discovered vulnerability called Heartbleed. We immediately reviewed all systems and found that none have experienced any related security flaws.

As part of our normal procedures we continually perform risk assessments and evaluate our technology for potential vulnerabilities. Heartbleed only affects websites that use an OpenSSL. Martin FCU does NOT use this type of technology for online banking. Your private information is secure.

To further protect yourself; If you use the same login credentials for other websites such as Facebook, Instagram, Gmail, Yahoo and other sites, please consider changing your financial login credentials as soon as possible.